Annex 1: Detailed Terms of Reference

BACKGROUND

Injuries arising from road traffic crashes are the eighth leading cause of death globally, responsible for around 1.3 million deaths each year. To accelerate action to reduce this burden, in March 2010 the UN General Assembly declared a Decade of Action for Road Safety (2011–2020) by implementing activities according to five pillars; that is, building road safety management capacity; improving the safety of road infrastructure; further development of the safety of vehicles; improving the behaviour of road users; and improving post-crash response.

Recognising the obstacle that road traffic mortality presents to development efforts, Member States also included a specific target on road safety in the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development; SDG Goal 3, Target 3.6 sets an ambitious target to halve the number of global deaths and injuries from road traffic crashes by 2020. Consequently, global performance targets and indicators have been developed through a series of meetings among experts and Member States facilitated by WHO. In November 2017, Member States reached consensus on a set of 12 voluntary global performance targets for road safety. A set of indicators has been developed to provide countries with the means to develop their own national targets and to monitor the extent of progress towards meeting both the global and the national targets.
